Pastoral Pondering

This Sunday's scripture readings call us to reflect on our significant relationships: with our spouse, our children, our God, and our world. All of these relationships are meant to be intentional, that is, that we must work with firm intention on improving them each and every day. There's no coasting in the Christian life! We're challenged each day to live as authentically a human life as possible and this, of necessity, requires that we interact in a positive way, with others around us. If we're married, then our spouse must have a special place in our heart and in our day-to-day interactions. We can't expect a marriage to last if the spouses don't spend time supporting one another and learning from one another and challenging one another to be the best possible person he/she can possibly be. The same can be said of our relationship to our children and grandchildren. We know how important and valuable someone is in our life by the amount of time we dedicate to encouraging their thriving and well-being. God is obviously number one on our list of persons with whom we need to have constant communication and dialogue. If we only pray to God when we're in church, then we have a hard time keeping on track with God's plan for our lives for the other 6 days of the week. If we pray to God only when we want something, then we're not really getting to know God more fully. We're using God as a bank of spiritual graces and eventually, we start to become a demanding customer! Our world is an essential component of our well-being as well. All life is interconnected and the way we treat our world has a lot to say about how much we value the creation God made for us to enjoy and to steward for succeeding generations. So let us use this week to reflect on our significant relationships and strive to improve them each day. A pastoral Pondering for this 27th Week in Ordinary Time.

NET TEAM VISITING SUDBURY

Once again, I appeal to your generosity and hospitality in opening your homes for one week to two young adults who are a part of a team of 10 young adults travelling across Canada to spread the Gospel to the youth in our schools and churches. You would need to provide a bedroom and meals for these two young adults during their stay here in Sudbury. The ten NET members will be arriving on October 24th in the late afternoon and will be leaving on Friday November 2nd after their final retreat. If you are able to provide room and board, please call the parish office (566-1876) or speak with Fr. Sam. Thank you!
